

FORSYTHE PARK

savannah, georgia

In the restoration and expansion of the Mansion on Forsythe Park, seated in the historic district of Savannah, Georgia, Stromberg Architectural helped maintain the historical splendor of the original mansion and transform it into the four star hotel it is today. Stromberg's advanced molding process allowed us to precisely match preexisting elements of the Victorian-Romanesque mansion when building the products to be used in the newer sections of the hotel.

Using our strong yet lightweight materials, Stromberg Architectural can help you with your restoration product by accurately replicating the original design using more durable materials, prolonging the life of your structure.

Our materials can be customized to any restoration project. We can replicate existing stone, or create new materials for seamless new construction.
