

WALLA WALLA
UNIVERSITY college place, washington

Walla Walla University, located in College Place, Washington, is a 1,800-student strong liberal arts college affiliated with the Seventh Day Adventist Church. It was founded in 1892 and offers six bachelor's degrees with majors in 42 areas of study.

Construction began on a new administration building for the school on Sept. 6, 2005 and was completed in the spring of 2007. A grand opening and ribbon-cutting ceremony was held on April 28, 2007 during the annual Alumni Homecoming Weekend.

The new building features Stromberg columns and cornice made from Stromberg's Glass Fiber Reinforced Concrete (GFRC).
